HyperMotion Technology also uses player movement data, to create a more intuitive visual outcome and UI. The user can turn the technology on and off and choose between ‘Verb’ (motion capture data will only be used for displaying the player's on-screen movement), ‘Impulse’ (player motion data will be used to display the on-screen movement, but will not be used in gameplay) and ‘Verb+Impulse’ (player motion and on-screen movement data will be used in both displays). “In FIFA 17, we introduced the concept of a ‘controlling the Player’, which revolutionised the transfer market experience and created a new way to control your virtual character,” said Christian Ebeling, FIFA Lead Gameplay Designer. “We want to take this one step further and incorporate a new level of player intelligence into the gameplay. “The feedback we received from the community in FIFA 17 and subsequent patches was incredibly positive and thanks to it, we’ve been able to make a number of improvements to how players are controlled in the game. One of the main issues was in how the ball movement was controlled. We’ve replaced player-controlled ball movement with an ‘Impulse Mechanic’ – a system that is intelligent and clever. It allows the player to pre-program their decisions when to move the ball. Players also have control over the acceleration and deceleration of the ball. “This new mechanic not only gives the player better control over the ball, but also places more focus on ball control. We’ve found that this allows the game to remain very playable, while bringing with it more realism and authenticity. With ‘Verb+Impulse’, we’re able to take the best aspects of both systems and incorporate them together.” “The impact of the ‘Impulse’ element is something that players will notice straight away. It’s not just a trick to make the game look more realistic. It actually helps the game to feel more natural, while allowing the players to feel more in control.” In FIFA 17, the on-screen player movement system displayed where the player controlled his character on-screen by using 'Gestures'. To move the player, players used a pincer grip with their right or left hand

What's new:

- FIFA 22 introduces “HyperMotion Technology,” which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay.

- Live it up as Rifa or get dirty as the Bladeglow line. Deciding if you want to add versatility and fun to your gameplay is a high-stakes decision. As you collect shin, take shots, blaze through crowds, sprint up and down the pitch, and dribble through opponents, you get to decide how you style yourself.
- You can see your Ultimate Team line up and train like a pro in coach mode, move the pitch to try out if feels in Playmaker or Freekicks mode, or simply dream up a lineup to perfect match-ups and hit shots. All of this and more in Ultimate Team Career mode.
- Cliff Tackles will reward the ball carrier with Power Plays and give them an opportunity for Counter Attack and Quick Breaks.
- Defence takes a deep breath and can choose between Composure and Aggressiveness.
- Disciplined Play uses the Global Intelligence Monitor to make sure you play the game the right way.
- Playmaker gives you all the tools you need to dazzle with tricks and create goals from out of nothing.
- A brand-new tutorial mode gives the new or the complete beginner a handy point of entry. Play through a series of simple moves and challenges in order to master key elements and build your playmaking foundation.
- The Professional Zones give you a taste of how other teams may play against you.
- FIFA 22 enables the AI to learn your playstyle and adapt to your playing style. You can start a new game now and give the AI the fun, exciting, and counter-intuitive kind of player you play with.
- Presented as Training Missions, FIFA Training Mode utilises the extensive motion capture data processed and converted into action replays. Add to the breadth of replays in Training Mode by collecting more than 50 landmarks, 99 different action types, and 1,839 different types of interactions. Ravi Newell, FIFA contributor and motion capture animator at EA Sports, did all of the recording with the actors in order to achieve their blend of precision

FIFA is a football video game franchise developed by EA Canada and published by Electronic Arts. The first game in the series was released in August 1992 for the PC. The release of FIFA followed a trend in video games at the time that offered a combination of the action of real football, with its quick pace, tactical approach, space for individual skill and improvised play, and the careful planning of an RPG or turn-based strategy game. FIFA became one of the best selling sports video games of all time, with over 100million copies sold by October 2007, and became a staple of the annual game conference E3. What is the new FIFA? EA SPORTS™ FIFA 22 is the 22nd title in the franchise, and it features significant gameplay improvements and additions over its predecessor, FIFA 21. More than 10 million players have played the game in beta in the last three months alone. The most significant gameplay addition is to the artificial intelligence, through the addition of advanced new behaviours and reactions that are inspired by the games from leading sports broadcast leagues. These help create unpredictable and authentic gameplay, which in turn means greater satisfaction when a player scores a critical goal, intercepts a pass, or wins the ball. Furthermore, FIFA 22 has key improvements to ball physics and ball control. Every type of ball feels familiar and you will understand immediately what to do with your feet and your head to control the ball in real time.
