Leaning against a bullet train window with my pack strung across my back I was feeling dejected. This is the first time I have ever taken a bullet train. I had heard good things about this train but as I have just said I was feeling a bit down. This all seemed to happen at the speed of light. One minute I was standing at the stop in Lugano chatting with a friend from Japan, the next I was in the middle of a conversation with someone in a coffee shop on the other side of the world. I did not know why I was talking to this person. But the conversation was interesting and I felt I needed to stay in touch with this friend from Japan. The next thing I knew I was in a taxi and we were heading for the airport. The conversation continued and I felt I needed to get in touch with my friend from Japan again. But I was just not sure where to send this mail. Could I send it by fax? Would I have to pay to send a fax? Would it just go straight through to the switchboard? Could I send the mail by email? Which mail system would I use? It was during the course of this conversation that a young man tapped me on the shoulder. He smiled at me and was in his mid twenties. "Hello, how are you?" he said in fluent English. "Good. I'm fine." I replied, "What a great country Switzerland is to visit." "I am from Japan. Japan is also a beautiful country and in fact I study law here in Switzerland. Why are you here?" I answered with a smile "I just came here on holiday to see my friends." "I see. You speak English so well. Do you do this for a living?" "Yeah." PC Invasion |   PC InvasionQ: Applying functions to arrays in Python I have two sets of numbers that are associated with a color so they are basically pairlists of colors and numbers. These are color and number lists color = ['R', 'G', 'B', 'Y'] number = [20, 25, 27, 30] and I have a black and white picture associated with each. The picture is [R, G, B, Y] and its associated number from [0, 0, 0, 0] to [255, 255, 255, 255]

What I want to do is remove all black pixels and then find the largest contiguous area of the remaining colors. What I have so far is:

import pygame # start pygame # create a pygame window win = pygame.display.set_mode((500,500)) # use pygame color wheel pygame.init() for i in range(0,255):
pygame.mixer.Channel(0).set(i) # create a new pygame app app = pygame.app.App() # create a new surface surface = app.Canvas.create_surface(500,500) # pygame event loop while True: pygame.time.Clock().tick(100) # check for events (keyboard presses, etc.) for evnt in pygame.event.get(): d0c515b9f4
