Driver Info: File name: lipi-2250-printer-2.4k SHARES Share Tweet WASHINGTON, D.C. — Attorney General William Barr, along with five other Justice Department attorneys, admitted to violating protocol, honesty, and the law during the Trump campaign, according to a report released Thursday by Special Counsel Robert Mueller. Sources with direct knowledge of the report confirmed that the Mueller investigators found “multiple episodes” where the attorneys, including Paul C. Ceglia, Mark Dubbin, William Moschella, Trevor Neil Coffman, and Andrew Weissmann, made improper violations of internal Justice Department policies. “All of these individuals played an integral role in Trump’s conspiracy to fix the 2016 election,” a source told The Post. “Not only did they not care about breaking the law, they absolutely did not care about any of the myriad of regulations and procedures in place for protecting grand jury witnesses from intimidation. They were completely dismissive and disrespectful of the rules and couldn’t give a crap about complying with them.” The report also detailed how four of the attorneys were inspired by and modeled their actions after former political operative Roger Stone. “He was the first one who convinced all of these guys that if they can get away with lying to congress and the FBI about Russia, they’d do it all the time,” a source told The Post. “It was a guidepost for what they were going to do. A great American hero who had been vilified as dirty and scummy, getting away with all of the crimes he was accused of, Trump said that he’d never do those things but that was what they were going to do. This is what they said was ‘acceptable,’” the source added. Stone was cited
